

Kirstie Haertel

Kirstie Haertel is the Deputy Chief, Park Programs for the Cultural Resources and Science Division for the National Park Service (Pacific West Region). That is a long title for saying that she oversees the development and implementation of projects to preserve archeology sites, ethnographic resources, cultural landscapes, historic structures and museum collections at National Park units across the west. She has worked for the National Park Service for over 25 years. Her personal interests in celebrating diversity and preserving significant sites led her to this type of work and her luck in having outstanding teachers (Hartwick College, University of Washington) and mentors have led her to effectively lead for the research, planning, and care of these resources.
